

NEW YORK HAS CHOSEN JEROME

Hearst Lost His Fight By But A Few Thousand Votes--Will Protest Election.

PHILADELPHIA FOR REFORM TICKET

Republicans Carry Chicago Judgeship--Ohio Has Gone Democratic--Massachusetts Is Republican Once More.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
New York, Nov. 8.—There is no doubt this morning of Jerome's election. His plurality will probably be over ten thousand.

Later Returns
The complete returns show that McClellan is elected by a plurality of 3,485. The vote of McClellan was 228,651; Hearst, 225,166; and Ivins, 137,049.

Hearst Still Hopeful
The latest returns this morning show McClellan is re-elected by a little over three thousand, with twenty-six districts missing. Hearst will contest the election, declaring a re-count will show him elected.

Jerome Is Firm
District Attorney Jerome will take charge of the returns of the sixth and eighteenth assembly districts, where it is charged the returns were "doctored." He has ordered the returns locked up, saying he is determined to have a fair count regardless of who suffers.

Jerome Is Elected
Jerome won. He won by himself. He was the only man to break the Tammany ticket. He won by 3,750 votes—an unparalleled achievement. He fought both big party bosses—O'Dell, the republican, and Murphy, the democrat. He battled in the open, but behind him were the men of New York who had tired of being treated as puppets in the political game. He attacked corruption, and corruption turned all its open and secret forces against him.

He attacked the "get rich quick" political leaders, and those leaders willingly reduced their visible surplus to punish the man who had the temerity to question the morality of reaping the golden harvest on political fields.

He fought against a delusive ballot. Every man who voted for him had to split his ticket. Thousands doubtless invalidated their ballots because of improper marking and yet he won.

When it was learned, Hearst had carried Brooklyn by 15,000 and that Standard Oil McCarren's ticket was wiped from the face of the earth, there was gloom in Tammany hall. Mr. Murphy looked as if the end of the world would be a welcome relief.

Some of the earlier returns from Manhattan were far from the encouraging, and it appeared that the greatest political machine in the world had lost its most momentous battle.

Roosevelt Pleased
Washington, Nov. 8.—President Roosevelt received the returns at the White House last night. To a few intimate friends he expressed his satisfaction at the triumph of the reform ticket. He said he shed no tears over the defeat of the Cox machine in Cincinnati. It is safe to say the President regards Jerome's defeat of the machine's candidate as a most important result.

Good Old Town
Cleveland, O., Nov. 8.—Tom L. Johnson was re-elected mayor by twelve thousand plurality. Pattison has carried the county by eleven thousand five hundred.

All Democrats
Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8.—Indications this afternoon point to the entire democratic ticket being elected and that the legislature will be democratic.

Taft's Statement
Cincinnati, O., Nov. 8.—Charles P. Taft has signed a statement to his paper, The Times-Star, and recognized organ of republicanism, and says: "In the retirement of Cox from leadership it has brought about the retirement of that kind of management of a campaign in the future. It means the republicans of this country must adopt a liberal and fair method of the nomination of officers. It is the duty of the republicans to place the house in order, so it can now sweep out the democratic bosses as the republican bosses have been swept out."

In Philadelphia
Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—The political revolution in the city yesterday is the greatest in this state in a generation. For the first time in years every office for which there was a contest lost to the regular republicans. For the first time in a quarter of a century the republicans have lost control of the state treasury. William H. Berry's plurality is at least a hundred thousand, and probably more. The reform organization carried the city by 43,333. The regular republicans carried only fourteen of the forty-two wards and lost even Penrose's ward.

Reform Forces Win
Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 8.—Pennsylvania and Philadelphia have been swept by the reform forces. The Penrose faction suffered an overwhelming defeat in both city and state, which means its disruption as a political power.

In Philadelphia the city party rolled up a plurality of 75,000 against the republican machine ticket. William H. Berry, democrat, was elected state treasurer over J. L. Plummer, organization republican, by a plurality of from 75,000 to 100,000.

It was distinctly an anti-boss fight, and the bosses have been overthrown.

Pattison Is Safe
Columbus, Nov. 8.—Pattison's election seems assured by forty thousand.

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 8.—Complete returns show that Eugene E. Schmitz has defeated John S. Part. victory by a plurality of 11,504. The victory carried with it the entire labor party ticket.

Defeat Disfranchisement
Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8.—Senator Gorman and his "machine," which for nearly thirty years absolutely has controlled the democratic party in Maryland, has sustained a terrific blow in the overwhelming defeat of the disfranchisement amendment, which was the chief issue of the campaign.

The complete returns in Baltimore give a majority of nearly 20,000 against the amendment. Scattering returns from the counties indicate a majority of 2,000 to 3,000 more, although the democrats still claim it has carried without the city.

In the western counties the majority is heavy against, and the vote for it in most of the eastern counties is not as large as Gorman expected.

Success for Bookwalter
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Charles A. Bookwalter, defeated two years ago for re-election as mayor, was chosen for a four-year term by a majority of between 1,500 and 2,000. The campaign has been marked by extreme bitterness and Mr. Bookwalter was the special target at which most of it was aimed. He lost many republican votes, but was supported by many democrats, and his election may be said to be in the nature of a personal triumph, overcoming as he has opposition in his own party through appeals to fair play and promises to improve on the administration of his democratic opponent.

Mormons Lose in Utah
Salt Lake, Utah, Nov. 8.—The Gentiles swept the Salt Lake City election and United States Senator Reed Smoot received his first crushing defeat since his election as an apostle of the Mormon church. His candidate for mayor ran a bad third. The returns indicate the election of Ezra Thompson, the American or anti-Mormon candidate, by a plurality of not less than 500 over Richard P. Morris, democrat, and about 3,000 over William J. Lynch, the Smoot republican.

Chicago Is Republican
Chicago, Nov. 8.—The republicans made a clean sweep in Chicago and Cook county yesterday. They elected six judges and all their candidates for drainage trustees, and in the case of the judges by heavy pluralities. In spite of a much closer vote than was expected and considerable scratching, they did not lose a man.

Bay State Is Republican
Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—Lieut. Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., of Boston, the republican candidate, was elected governor of Massachusetts in the state election by a plurality of 29,435 over Gen. Charles W. Bartlett of Boston, the democratic candidate.

Whitelaw Reid Unable To Be Present At His Fraternity Convention
Delta Kappa Epsilon Hold Fifty-Ninth Meeting in New York City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Nov. 8.—The fifty-ninth annual convention of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity opened here today, with a large and distinguished number of delegates in attendance. In the absence of Whitelaw Reid, United States Ambassador to England, who is president of the association, Col. John J. McCook presided. Among the speakers will be Hilary A. Herbert, Ex-Secretary of the Navy; Victor B. Metcalfe, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and Senator F. B. Brandegee of Connecticut.

Love Is Guilty
Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 8.—Albert Love was found guilty of murder in the second degree today of killing Merle Burnes, a tell ow circus employ.

Haight & Freese Case
Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—The hearing of the case of Mrs. Anna L. K.

Weiss against Haight & Freese company was resumed today. Mrs. Weiss alleges that the defendants, which are among the most prominent brokers in the country, unlawfully used money which her late husband gave them for speculation.

World's Oldest Quaker
Dartmouth, Mass., Nov. 8.—Eunice

This old gentleman has a very impressive appearance from one point of view at least.

IS ALL READY FOR THE FIRST MENTAL TESTS FOR OFFICE

The New Law Regarding Civil Service for State Offices Is To Be Given Soon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—The Wisconsin state civil service commission has announced that it is nearly ready to give examinations to candidates who wish to compete for the salaried positions in the employ of the state. Since the legislature adjourned six months ago the commission has been making a study of the state service and of various systems of civil service reform as found in other states and in the national government. The commission is composed of Dr. S. E. Sparling, professor of municipal government in the state university; Otto Cafron of Plymouth, and former Secretary of State Cunningham of Chippewa Falls. There are some 1,250 positions to be filled by the civil service commission, in the state departments, charitable, reformatory and penal institutions and in the university. The first examinations, which will be held next month, will be for positions ranging in salary from $50 to $150 a month, including clerks, bookkeepers, factory inspectors, prison guards, reformatory teachers, game wardens, steam engineers and firemen.

Another Revolution
Washington, Nov. 8.—A revolutionary outbreak in Santo Domingo is reported to the state department. Admiral Bradford has been ordered to send a warship to the scene of the trouble.

Missionary Committee
Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 8.—One of the most important committees of the Methodist General Conference, the missionary committee, began its sessions at James church here today. To this committee is assigned the direction of Methodist mission effort between the quadrennial meetings of the General Conference, and the sessions will be devoted to hearing the reports from the home and foreign field, and appropriations made for work of the coming year.

The committee will also arrange plans for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the work of the society in India. The date falls next year.

WAS SERIOUSLY ILL BUT AN HOUR; DIES

Dr. Warren C. McManus of Edgerton, Succumbs Most Unexpectedly This Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, Nov. 8.—After but an hour's illness with pneumonia, Dr. Warren C. McManus died at his home here at one o'clock this afternoon. He had been affected for the past several days with a cold and a touch of the gripe, but his malady was not considered dangerous. This noon his condition changed suddenly for the worse and succumbed, his malady having developed into a severe attack of pneumonia. The deceased was widely known throughout the northern part of the county and was highly respected by all. He was a member of the Masonic order. There are left to mourn his demise a wife and three daughters, the Misses Phoebe, Elizabeth and Frances McManus.

WISCONSIN MAN WON JUDGESHIP IN OMAHA

Charles Leslie Is Now Judge of the Probate Court of Douglas County, Nebraska.

Charles Leslie, a former resident of Wisconsin and brother of L. L. Leslie of this city, was one of the republicans elected to office in Omaha yesterday. Mr. Leslie is now the Judge-elect of the probate court of Douglas county, having won his victory in the face of the strongest kind of opposition. In fact, the whole campaign in Omaha against the republican ticket seems to have been directed at him. A telegram from him this noon announces that he has won by a handsome majority.

MONUMENT TO JEFF DAVIS AT RICHMOND

Cornerstone of a Memorial Being Erected by Daughters of Confederacy Laid Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Richmond, Nov. 8.—An event of great importance throughout the Southern States was the laying of the cornerstone of the Jefferson Davis monument here today under the auspices of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It will be a colonnade of thirteen Doric columns, seventeen feet high, edged with a Doric frieze decorated with Doric triglyphs and bronze seals of all the states which took part in the secession. The colonnade terminates at each end in a massive pier four feet square, surmounted by bronze trophies, composed of Confederate flags, shields, drums, canons, etc. The entire width across the colonnade is forty-eight feet. The inscription of the colonnade describes the facts connected with the secession monument, the Confederate state and the part played by Mr. Davis.

FOOT RACES FOR THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS

Coach King Is Training Men for Michigan Game Just Now.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—Foot races and signal practice form the main features of the work of the badgers this week at Camp Randall. Real football is not in evidence. There is a good deal of "jolly" in the work and the players and coaches mingle with childlike familiarity. After an hour or so of fast signal drill, the men toe a line for sprinting. The snap-back of a football is the signal for the start and away the players fly down the field after the punt. King and Holt take part in these competitions, and the little head coach frequently leads the bunch at the finish. Holt is too heavy to win, but the big former guard usually comes not far behind the leaders. Vanderboom, Findlay and Kemp are the fastest men in the Wisconsin playing squad, as shown by these tests. Two inches of snow fell early in the week, but did not interfere with the practice much, as the coaches did not want to give the men hard work. No work has been done at Camp Randall yet, the work being confined to the space in front of the university gymnasium, where thousands of students congregate daily and cheer the winners of the Minnesota game. Cardinal hat bands have been circulated by the athletic association. Each bears the words: "On to Michigan." Negotiations are being carried on to secure a low railroad rate to Ann Arbor and it is said it is secured that fully 1,500 Wisconsin students will journey to the Michigan game.

Extensive real estate purchases by W. F. Colton, trustee of the Gould railroad interests, have been filed in Ogden, Utah. From the extent of the land purchased it is reasonably conceded that Ogden will be made a terminal of Gould's new transcontinental road.

WITTE MAY BE A MOB VICTIM

Reported On New York, Chicago And London Exchanges That He Has Been Murdered.

W. T. STEAD TALKS OF CONDITIONS

Tells Of The Woman In Red Who Leads The Revolutionists To Acts Of Violence--End Is Not In Sight.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
New York, Nov. 8.—Rumor is current on the stock exchanges here and in Chicago today that M. de Witte has been assassinated. The same report is known in London, but is unconfirmed and given no credence.

Stead Talks

Berlin, Nov. 8.—William T. Stead, fresh from Russia by way of Finland and Copenhagen, stopped over in Berlin on his way to Paris. For an hour and a half he poured forth his vivid impressions of "hell pretty well let loose," as he called it, of the things that he had seen and heard and of the "ghastly welter into which Russian society has drifted."

"Strange things are happening," said Mr. Stead. "Think of the incidents at Revel. Some determined persons marched down the street to the town hall followed by a crowd. There the mayor and councilmen were deliberating on the situation. I came our determined friends.

"We demand," they said, "we demand liberty, universal suffrage, and the right to rule ourselves."

"But," said the mayor, "I cannot give you these things. I would gladly send your petitions to the emperor."

Rebel Mobs Demand Money
"Well," continued the delegates, "we are delegates of a revolution, and if we do not get what we want we have decided to burn the city. Give us 7,500 rubles!"

"The mayor and his colleagues thought it was better to pay the 7,500 rubles than have the city burned, so they raised the money, paid the delegates, and the latter went away promising to be good, and they were good. But another crowd came and said:

"What about us? Pay us, too!"

"This the mayor would not do and they went away with threats of destruction."

"The Red Virgin" of the French Commune was Louise Michel. Well, in Revel a certain widow named Lode, dressed in scarlet from top to toe and with an ax over her shoulder, placed herself at the head of the mob. All night the revolutionists whittled themselves up. In the meantime the governor had gotten out troops and the mob gathered in the morning facing the soldiers in the great square. The governor called on the mob to disperse and said that if after fifteen minutes they did not disperse he would order the troops to fire. Five minutes went by and the Widow Lode in red climbed a lamp post and cried out encouragement and exhorted steadfastness for the revolution. The soldiers began to call out to the people to go away, as if they were ordered to fire they must do so, and they did not want to kill anybody.

Attempt to Kill Governor

"Kill him! kill him!" screamed the Widow Lode, pointing to the governor.

"Several revolver shots were fired from the crowd, but no one was hit. The governor who waited to the end of the fifteen minutes then gave the command to fire, and the Widow Lode, shot through the body, fell to the ground as Baron Euxill, an eyewitness, told me, 'like a sparrow from a twig.'"

"One hundred and five dead persons were picked up from the square and thirty more died in the hospitals."

"The coolest man in Russia is the emperor. God grant that he may keep his seat, that the liberals may gather about him, and that they may resist the forces of dissolution. His authority is shaken; passions are loose, and things are likely to be worse. There may be fearful slaughters. As an optimist I think 100,000 lives may fall. If I were pessimistic, I would say 2,000,000. The situation is something like this:

"The police, gendarmes, and Cossacks have been suppressing a revolution in the name of the emperor. Suddenly, they say, the emperor goes over to the liberal side, and that he thinks more of those who want to vote and who are doing everything in the way of meeting and agitation which the police were taught to believe was unlawful than he does of them. As simply human nature the police and gendarmes say:

"Oh, well, if the emperor's new friends act like this it is no concern of ours."

"And when the police are indifferent the 'boogymen' break loose and terrorism in society also breaks loose. That mass of ignorant conservatives which only thinks of killing—the Black Hundred in Moscow—are conservatives who are offended by the liberals getting the upper hand. All through the Russian empire authority, represented by the police, Cossacks, and gendarmes, is shaken, as I have said, and the forces that tend to tear society apart are at work."

WHAT HIDDEN FACTS WILL HYDE REVEAL?

"Jimmie" to Testify Before Legislative Committee--Will Probably

Outdo McCurdy.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Nov. 8.—The legislative committee under Chairman Montgomery, which is investigating insurance scandals in this state, resumed its examinations today, with Counselor Charles E. Hughes in charge. James K. Hyde, former first vice-president of the Equitable Life Insurance company will be one of the first witnesses to be called, and his testimony is expected to furnish sensations greater than those of Richard McCurdy, of the Mutual Life Insurance company and John McCall of the New York Life. John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, will also be one of the new witnesses to come before the committee. Just before the committee adjourned Mr. Hegeman was called to the stand to explain certain deals with the Mutual, but Mr. Hughes did not go into inner workings of the Metropolitan company. The state committee will inquire into the "industrial" feature of the Metropolitan and other companies' business with a view to determining to what extent, if any, the insurance of the lives of very young children encourage the practice of infanticide.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Ollie Price, a colored woman of Spring Valley, Ill., has been declared insane and taken to the Kankakee asylum. She imagined that she had lost $1,000 by the failure of the Spring Valley National bank.

Judge Paul Jensen of Nebraska City, who was tendered the appointment to the supreme bench of Arizona, has declined the place. District Attorney Nave of Arizona has been given the appointment.

Ambassador Whitelaw Reid has sent the first money for the McKinley memorial fund. A draft for $1,000 has just been received from him by Justice William R. Day, president of the McKinley National Memorial association.

TEN ARE KILLED IN BIG WRECK IN EAST

Sixteen Others Are Injured in the Same Smashup--All Were Trainmen.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 8.—A collision between a freight and passenger train on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road this morning killed ten and injured sixteen. The dead as sent here, in a partial list, are: Frank Poole, G. Snyder, H. E. Stuckney, M. J. Graham, and an unknown fireman on the passenger engine, all being trainmen.

WOMAN WAS OFFICER IN JAPANESE ARMY

Went with Soldiers as Nurse, and Was Highly Rewarded--Speaks at Baltimore Tonight.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8.—Miss Anita Newcomb McGee, who went to the war with the Japanese soldiers as nurse and was the guest of the Japanese government, will speak here tonight before the students of John Hopkins University and tell of her experiences. Miss McGee was also honored with the rank of an officer of the Japanese army, by the Mikado, in recognition of her services.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

TAFT HAS FIGHT UPON HIS HANDS

AMERICAN SHIPPING INTERESTS HURT BY HIS POLICY.

PHILIPPINES CAUSE TROUBLE

Matter Will Be Settled by Congress—Other Gossip from the National Capital.

(From William Wolff Smith.)
Special Correspondence.
Washington, D. C.,—A lively fight between Secretary Taft and the American shipping interests is in prospect for the coming session of Congress. After years of struggle for recognition, the American shipowners finally secured from Congress an act extending the coastwise shipping laws to the Philippines. This was bitterly contested by a combination of cordage manufacturers, who not content with a rebate of $750 per ton on hemp which is charged as an export tariff on all hemp exported from the Philippines to other countries, the United States alone being exempt, maintained they could not compete with foreign manufacturers unless they were able to import their hemp in tramp steamers operated under a foreign flag. Secretary Taft adopted their view of the case and finally obtained a postponement of the date on which the law should take effect from July 1, 1905 until July 1, 1906. Now the plea is advanced that American shipping will not be available in sufficient tonnage to handle the Philippine export trade on July 1st of next year, and therefore the time should be extended from July 1, 1906 to July 1, 1907.
Mr. Alexander R. Smith, of New York, formerly Superintendent of the Maritime Exchange of that city, and now Commissioner of the Merchant Marine League of the United States, with headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, is in Washington, and takes issue with Secretary Taft and predicts that his efforts to have the time extended will be bitterly opposed by the maritime interests of this country. Mr. Smith has just returned from an extensive trip through the New England states and will make a tour of the South before Congress opens, in the interests of his organization.
"American vessel owners," said Mr. Smith, "are keenly alive to the danger to their interests which is threatened by Secretary of War Taft's announced intention to secure a postponement until 1909 of the extension of our coastwise laws to the Philippines. Secretary Taft, continued Mr. Smith, who is an expert on American shipping affairs, "claims that there are not enough American vessels available to do our carrying to the Philippines. Doubtless, he believes this; nevertheless it is not so, as there are many more vessels now available for that carrying than there is business for them to do. Secretary Taft, or any other person who may seek the proof of this assertion from the only source that 'proof' is possible—American vessel owners—can readily obtain it in convincing abundance. But the trouble is, Secretary Taft gets his information through sources that are hostile to American shipping and he believes it. All of the foreign business of the Philippines is today controlled by foreigners, chiefly Englishmen. They have their agencies, their banks, their ships and every accessory to trade and they are determined to hold it. They have ways of having the mat-

THEORIES ABOUT FOOD.

Also a Few Facts on the Same Subject.

We hear much nowadays about health foods and hygienic living, about vegetarianism, many other fads along the same line.
Restaurants where no meat, pastry or coffee is served and the food cranked in his glory, and arguments and theories galore advanced to prove that meat was never intended for human stomachs, and almost make us believe that our sturdy ancestors, who lived four-score years in robust health on roast beef, pork and mutton must have been grossly ignorant of the laws of health.
Our forefathers had other things to do than formulate theories about the food they ate. A warm welcome was extended to any kind, from bacon to acorns.
As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.
Dr. Julius Remmon, on this subject says: "Nervous persons, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat meat and plenty of it. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily corrected by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousands grains of meat, eggs or other animal food in three hours, and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase necessary to perfect digestion, and every form of indigestion will be overcome by their use."
That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspepsia should eat plenty of meat and insure its proper digestion by the daily use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, pepsin, diastase, fruit acids and salts, which actually perform the work of digestion. Cheap cathartic medicines, masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures, are useless for indigestion, as they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.
Dyspepsia in all its many forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the dyspepsia is to make daily use of meat time of a preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which is endorsed to contain active digestive principles.

ter so presented to the secretary that he believes what he is told. American vessel owners are not in his confidence and have no way of getting him to realize facts as they exist. But an American congress stands between their hostile foreign influences and American vessel owners and the latter are content to present their facts before that tribunal and then they will be glad to have those who are insidiously opposing them forced into the open.
"I personally know of American corporations and individuals who are ready and eager to establish American lines of steamships running from our Atlantic ports to the Philippines. As a matter of fact, there is not enough trade at present between the United States and the Philippines to keep even a single American line busy. But these Americans who want to establish American lines in that trade do not consider so the immediate trade as the future and greater trade that will follow the establishment of free trade between the United States and those distant possessions the same as now exist between the United States and all of its other insular possessions. Such lines would be powerful factors in bringing about free trade between the Philippines and the United States, a fact that Secretary Taft seems to have overlooked. The foreigners now have that carrying, and they want to keep it. It remains to be seen," he continued, "whether Congress will legislate for foreign or for American ships in respect to our Philippine trade. For my part, I believe it will legislate for Americans."

"Secretary Taft is also quoted as saying that no American vessels have been built for this trade since the law was passed last year. But who is to blame for that? Not Americans who are anxious and ready to establish lines to the Philippines, nor American shipbuilders most of whose shipyards are idle. Secretary Taft himself is the cause of it. He has, ever since the law reserving our trade with the Philippines to American vessels first passed, three years ago, persistently advocated its postponement until 1909. He has succeeded in having it postponed once and is quoted as threatening to do so again, if he can. In the face of this threat are Americans going to put millions of dollars into ships, only to face a loss if Secretary Taft succeeds in his efforts? What would have happened to a line of American steamships built and ready for our Philippine trade in 1904? Its owners would have been ruined. Suppose a fleet should be built for that trade now to be ready in 1906, when the law giving the trade to American vessels goes into effect? If Secretary Taft succeeded in having its application postponed until 1909 that line would be ruined. Of course, American capital in the face of such powerful hostility as Secretary Taft's combined with the foreign shipping interests who are scheming to hold the carrying, is afraid of the venture. The risk is too great. Why, I am reliably told that the New York agents and representatives of the foreign shipping interests now doing our Philippine carrying, are freely bragging that they will have the law's operation postponed indefinitely, and they openly taunt and jeer at American vessel owners who believe the contrary. But all of this will be properly disclosed as soon as Secretary Taft or anyone else introduces a bill providing for further postponement.
"I reiterate," he concluded, "that there is an ample supply of American vessels for the present trade, and plenty of American capital ready to establish lines as soon as Secretary Taft's threatened continuance of opposition is removed."

Both sides of the federal insurance question will be represented in the Senate this winter and by insurance men. Senator Dryden, who with the support of the New York Life and the New York Mutual, has, as President of the Prudential Insurance company and Senator from New Jersey, earnestly and ably advocated federal supervision and control of life insurance, will be opposed by Senator Morgan G. Buckley of Connecticut. On this subject Senator Buckley says: "Regulation of the business of insurance by the Federal government, which would include the right of an insurance company to transact business in the several states, regardless of the laws and departmental requirements of any state, other than that which gave corporate life to the company, would be desirable, and to secure such exclusive supervision and regulation would justify and demand persistent and untiring effort. But regulation which will not exclude all supervision, other than that of the home state, will but add to the burdens of insurance companies and secure in return simply the moral effect, which supervision maintained ad Washington story... upon a high plane of efficiency, may have an encouraging and restraining force upon state insurance."
After examining the arguments presented by the supporters of federal regulation, and the authorities cited, Mr. Buckley reaches the conclusion that in the present state of the question as indicated by the rulings of the Supreme Court, and with the limitations upon the power of Congress, he could not recommend that steps be taken to secure federal regulation. Continuing the senator says: "You talk about that state insurance commissioners being politicians. Any person in Washington who holds a position of a similar character, is a politician, the creation of the statesman who put him there. What have you today in any line of federal supervision that you can point to and say that the supervision of insurance would be commendable or sensible? Take the national banks. I point to the failure in a short period of time of national banks amounting to $200,000,000 in capital. The money lost is from the same widows and orphans that you claim you want to protect in insurance supervision by the government. I want to tell you also that a committee of United States Senators who recently investigated these failures reported back to the Senate that they were caused by the dishonesty and incompetency of the men sent out from Washington to do the work of supervision. They don't pay enough at Washington for the right kind of men to do the work."

For any office, from the President down, they ought to pay three times as much. The man that they would put up for commissioner of insurance would only get five thousand a year. Mr. Morton deserted the Cabinet for a most tempting offer here in New York, and I told him when he left I would be tempted to desert the United States Senate if a similar position came along my way. I don't believe that Congress will put itself in the position of passing a question up to the Supreme Court that it is sure of getting turned down."

Speaking of federal control of insurance and the support of the Mutual Life Insurance company to the project, Washington is very much interested in the proposed investigation of the Mutual company by its own officials and stockholders. Apparently this investigation is to be conducted for the principal purpose of shaking out the McCurdy regime, but under the circumstances the public is rather skeptical as to such reports. As will be remembered, it was brought out on the witness stand in New York that the interesting little special dispatches concerning the investigation of the Mutual which appeared in many papers throughout the country and in which such innocent looking statements as "President McCurdy's testimony made a most favorable impression on the committee" appeared, were paid for at the rate of a dollar a line. As much of the information concerning what the committee proposes to do is appearing in New York "specials," the public in this city, at least, are wondering whether this is not also dollar or two a line matter. If so, the Mutual is now utilizing the telegraphic press, agency, through which it has dispensed thousands of dollars every year to the newspapers to attack President McCurdy, it would indeed seem that his days are numbered. So far as has appeared to date, the Mutual is the only company which spent money in this direction for the purpose of influencing public opinion. The Equitable and the New York Life have men in their advertising departments who act as press agents in that they prepare and circulate to the press items which they consider of sufficient interest to justify the papers in publishing them such as interviews with officials of the company and statements of the receipts and expenditures of the company, etc. These items are submitted to the papers to be published as matters of news and no compensation is paid the papers for publishing them nor is any expected for the news itself. Mr. Morton took a bright young man from his city to New York with him for the especial purpose of preparing such matter for the press and circulating it to the papers in behalf of the Equitable.

The Louisville & Nashville and the Cumberland railway, two big systems, are having a hot fight to establish a route into the great coal fields of Bell, Knox and Whitely counties, Kentucky, where 500,000,000 tons of coal are ready for mining. Owing to the peculiar nature of that mountain line one line only can be built, and for this reason each road wants the right. If the Cumberland wins the fight the road will be extended to Jellico, Tenn., to intersect the Southern railway.
The Santa Fe is prepared to spend $100,000 during the coming year in its reading rooms. # MUST FURNISH OWN AMUSEMENT

NO DIVERSIONS FOR WHITE PEOPLE IN CANAL ZONE.

MAILS ARE EAGERLY SOUGHT

Immense Amount of Papers, Magazines and Letters Sent from Friends in States.

Culebra, Canal Zone, Rep. de Panama, October 1, 1905.
This (Saturday) evening I have just returned from the postoffice which delivered states mail to us that came in on a New York steamer which arrived at Colon today. The boys are always lined up eager to get their mail including besides letters, hundreds of pounds of papers and literature.
The two clerks call out names as they run over the matter and each one, as his name is called, responds to it and in this way the mail is quickly distributed. To us, this is a very important thing, when it is remembered that we have no entertainment except what we make for ourselves and among entirely foreign surroundings, and almost every employee, goes to his room after the evening meal and spends the evening there, writing or reading or perhaps visiting with some friend.
A Curfew rings every night at 9 o'clock, which is regarded as similar to "taps" sounded in a military camp. After the camp is quiet, nothing is heard except the "whirr" of frogs, the occasional whistle of a policeman as they patrol the camp, or the familiar crow of the chattering.
Each boat arriving from the states now, brings from seventy-five to a hundred new employees, some of whom are always assigned to Culebra. It is the source of considerable amusement to the men, who have been here for some time, to size up the "tenderfoot" as he always can be picked out at first sight. To be dressed in civilian clothing, while all employees wear the khaki and leggings. A "tenderfoot" is always ruddy complexioned and in good spirits and all in all thinks this country is not bad after all, but the malaria and change of blood will usually take most of their surplus fat off before many weeks.
Another amusing thing I have opportunity to notice, in some of the blacksmiths working in the machine shops. One side of one of the shops at Empire, I use for keeping my motor-car while waiting for orders to go out on the work. These men are colored and while they are skilled in their work, it is very unlike the bustling of the American laborer in the same capacity. Each smith has a striker who uses a heavy hammer on the anvil work with the smith himself. When working, they beat a merry tattoo by striking the anvil about six times to once on the iron they are working, in a very tuneful manner. I stopped to watch two of them today as I was passing them and as soon as they saw they were furnishing amusement for me, at once proceeded to play their most rapid and elaborate tune, which was soon ended, however, by two of the foremen quickly coming up, who made them stop playing. Wood workers work the same way and before they start to drive a nail, begin a tattoo on the wood with their hammers, which sounds similar to a woodpecker hammering on a board, which is interrupted at intervals when they hit the nail a blow.

Most of the labor is after the same fashion and on good white workmen in the states would do about the same amount of work in a given time as twelve of the colored laborers here. I actually saw, while flagging on the Panama Railway, a gang of fourteen colored laborers under one colored foreman and one white foreman, work one day and a quarter leveling a piece of track that I could have done myself in two hours; in this climate, and I don't profess to be much for physical labor (or mental labor either so far as that goes) for since I left the farm several years ago, I have tried to follow the advice my father gave me many times, "to let my head save my heels."
This of course puts the laborers here in an exceedingly bad light, but in that one bit of work I would have been glad to have done in two hours for one half of the money paid the entire gang or $9.50 in gold.
On the Canal Zone, any kind of United States money is termed gold, and the Panamanian money is all called silver. The standard is two to one, or one U. S. dollar is worth two of the native "dobies" or dollars. They have coins of silver of the same denomination as ours except that they make a small silver five-cent piece in the place of our nickel, and all coins are valued two to one with the exception of the twenty-five-cent piece, which they call twenty cents and if takes five of them to make a dollar.
Both kinds of specie are used here although with but few exceptions, the business men quote prices in "tin" or native money. But whether Chinaman or Spaniard or other nationality, they know the value of the United States coins, even though they may not be able to speak the English language.
Buying here, particularly of the Chinamen, is quite an art as they have a different price for everything for every American and it all depends on the skill of the buyer, which one buys the cheapest. For this reason, anyone coming into camp with something new is usually asked how much he had to pay, and his answer is almost invariably followed by the question "gold" or "that's gold." This question has become such a habit here that no doubt, a Canal employee will find himself still asking the same question under similar circumstances after he gets back to the states.

BUILDING NOTES

On South High street between the Grand Hotel building and the Jeffris flats which face on Dodge street Dave Jeffris is erecting a modern flat building. The foundation is to be of stone, the front of fancy red brick laid with tuck pointed black joints, and the side and rear walls of the common red brick. It will be two stories high and contain four flats, each of which will have five rooms and a bath room. The foundation is completed and the brick work proceeding quickly. The building will be put under cover this winter and finished as early in the spring as possible. Kelley & Mason are the contractors.

Of late progress made in the building of the new Garfield Memorial Methodist church has been comparatively slow. Many things have combined to make speed impossible for a time, but despite that fact it is expected that the edifice will be ready for use by February 20 or March 1. The exterior brick work will be finished this week and then only the completion of the roof is necessary to enclose the church for interior work during the winter. The placing of the slate on the roof has been commenced and will be ended within the next two or three weeks. On the interior, work will begin in earnest soon. The tiling in the basement is about done and plastering in this portion will be started shortly. The furnace has been installed and will be bricked in for use next week.

Within the next few days Contractor J. P. Wright will commence work on the new residence which is to be erected for L. D. Barker on Fourth avenue. The structure is to be ready for occupancy by July 1, 1906, and to make it possible to fulfill the agreement without unduly rushing the work next spring the foundation should be in and the frame work up this fall.

It is expected now that the addition to the Courthouse, which was to have been completed November 1, being put back by the delay in the removal of steel material, is now progressing well and it is expected that the place will be ready for use December 1.

APATHY OF MEMBERS OF HUMANE SOCIETY

Evidenced in Small Attendance at the Annual Meeting Last Night—Some of the Workers Are Discouraged.

Because of a discouraging apathy on the part of many of its members, the Janesville Humane Society is again threatened with extinction. The annual meeting, called at the public library last evening had to be adjourned because President Richard Valentine, Vice President S. B. Heddles, Humane Officer D. D. Bennett, and other leading members failed to put in an appearance. Miss Melissa Chittenden, the secretary, presided at the brief session, which preceded adjournment and a report was submitted by the collector, Mrs. John Peters, in which it was shown that the present membership totaled seventy-five and that much good had been accomplished in relief work during the past twelve months. One flagrant case which had come to the attention of the society was that of a first ward mother, who is in the habit of unmercifully beating her children during the frequent sprees in which she indulges. The local society was organized on Jan. 27, 1891, and has sighted many glaring wrongs during its existence.

IMMORTALITY HELD TO BE CONDITIONAL

Advent Christian Church. Believes in Total Destruction of Wicked—Local Congregation May Rent Store.

Members of the Advent Christian church congregation discussed last evening the question of renting a store apartment in the city for their services, but reached no definite decision. Twenty attended the meeting which was held in the Calceonian rooms and Rev. Edward Lubke presided over the deliberations. Church officers were chosen as follows: Pastor, Rev. Lubke; clerk, W. B. Davis; deacons, William Alderman and Marion Burnett; deaconesses, Mrs. William Alderman and Mrs. Clara Randall; treasurer, Frances Burnett. Rev. Lubke outlined the tenets of the faith as follows: "We believe that man by nature is wholly mortal—that immortality is conditional in the unconscious state of the dead; the total destruction of the wicked; the second personal coming of Christ; the Kingdom of God to be established upon the earth upon the second advent of Christ; the earth to be regenerated and given to the saints as an eternal home."

DIAMOND THIEF HAS CLAIMED BELOIT AS HIS ALMA MATER

Convicted in Chicago, Said He Was a Graduate of That Institution.

Making an erroneous claim of being a graduate of Beloit college, admitting that he was a diamond thief, and asserting that he had spent $200,000 in the past three years, William Ely was yesterday sentenced to an indeterminate term in the penitentiary by Judge Barnes of the criminal court of Chicago. The prisoner was charged with the robbery of the A. W. Johnson jewelry store on Wells street in Chicago of $5,000 worth of diamonds last July. Two others were with Ely and it is claimed that the confessed thief has given the names and location of the other two men in the job. The Chicago officers are now seeking these men. Ely's claim that he is a graduate of Beloit college is absurd, say the college authorities. "There was a young man named Ely a student in the Academy several years ago, but there is no graduate by that name. It is known, however, that the fellow comes from a good family, that his father was a prominent resident of Morrison, Ill., and that the present convict was left a very large sum of money only a few years ago, most of which he lost following the race-tracks and other gambling, makes the cases similar.

— FORTY YEARS AGO —

Janesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, November 8, 1865.—The Result in the City.—The vote of the city on the various offices voted for, gave the following majorities: Fairchild, 925; Bates, 33; and extension of suffrage, 60. The official may vary these figures slightly, but they are no doubt very nearly correct.

The Result.
Sufficient returns have been received from all parts of the state to indicate quite certainly that the Union State ticket was yesterday elected in Wisconsin. This result was so confidently expected that no one feels much like rejoicing over it, but all are disposed to accept it as a matter of course. We not only secure the whole State ticket but have elected an overwhelming majority in both houses of the legislature notwithstanding all the efforts of the enemies to divide and distract us. The vote was unopposedly light, both on our side and on that of the opposition, but which side has lost the most, no one as yet can tell. As to the question of suffrage, there is no one so sanguine as to believe that the important measure has been carried. When it failed to meet with the support of its own friends, it cannot help failing.

In this Assembly district the canvass has been unusually exciting and has been carried on with all the spirit compatible with good nature. The regular Union nominee has been defeated by a combination of incongruous elements, which is familiar to everyone and which must have defeated anyone else beside Mr. Richardson.

We rejoice, as no doubt our readers will also, that the election is over and we can devote our columns to quite as much public importance as politics, and far more congenial to the tastes of a large proportion of our readers.

An official history of the gallant 5th Army Corps is in preparation under the direction of a committee of its former officers. Any members of the corps who have interesting material valuable for such work, are invited to send it to Brevet Major J. L. Chamberlain, Brunswick, Maine, who has the matter in charge.

The English publishing house of Rutledge & Sons have just issued a volume entitled "Men of the Times," in which, among other startling facts, the reader finds that General Sherman was compelled to abandon Atlanta, and fleeing eastward escaped to the sea.

..COMING ATTRACTIONS..

The New "San Toy."
The unvarying success which has heretofore attended the productions here of musical comedies which have originated in London, will no doubt be further exemplified on Saturday, November 11, matinee and night, at the Myers Grand, when "San Toy" will be presented for the second time in this city, under the personal direction of Mr. John C. Fisher. This comedy is looked upon as a classic in the light opera field. Its music and comedy have never been surpassed in any of the light opera works. The production to be presented here is the same as was presented at Daily's Theatre, New York, last spring for the fourth time. The company numbers over fifty people, including many well-known Broadway favorites.

JANESVILLE MARKET REPORT

Quotations on Grain and Produce for The Gazette.

REPORTED BY P. H. GREEN & SON, DEALERS IN WHEAT, GRAIN, FLOUR AND FEED.

Nov. 7th, 1905.

Flour—1st Patent, 120 to 135 and 1st Patent, 135 to 140 per ton.

Wheat—Chicago Cash, No. 1 and 2 North, 74¢ to 75¢.

Barley—New, 34¢ to 35¢.

Oats—New, 24¢ to 25¢.

Timothy Seed—Locals at $3.00 to $3.50.

Hay—Pure corn and oats, $2.00 per ton.

Standard Middlings, $1.00 sacked.

Corn Meal—$2.00 per ton.

Hay—New, 34¢ to 35¢.

Butter—Dairy, 20¢ to 21¢.

Creamery 23¢.

Potatoes—6¢ to 7¢.

Eggs—Strictly fresh, 21¢.

Onions 15¢ to 16¢.

Poultry, live, chickens 8 to 10; old fowls, 7 to 8.

Quacks, dressed—11¢ to 12¢.

Turkeys, dressed—15 to 16¢.

Turkeys, live—12 to 13¢.

While there is a slight decline in wheat during the last week owing to the continued export supply by Russia in the face of the government disorders in the empire, flour in the wholesale markets is steadily advancing, being quoted today at least 40¢ per bbl. higher than a week ago.

There is a slight decline in corn in the Chicago market during the last week. The Chicago market in oats remains unchanged, but the local demand for limited amounts is a little firmer, with slight advance. There is a slight advance in the local market in ground feed (pure corn and oats), owing to the scarcity of old corn selected for grinding. There continues an active demand for potatoes in the local markets, but prices slightly lower in consequence of car lots being brought in by local dealers. The local demand for hay and straw, both baled and loose, is good. Nice clover hay will sell readily, both loose and baled.

LOW RATES.

Via Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain Route.

Special homecoming excursions. Tickets on sale October 3rd, 17th, 19th, 19th and 21st; December 5th and 19th, 1905, to Arkansas, Colorado, Indian Territory, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. Stopovers permitted. Return limit twenty-one days.

“A lion is known by his paw”
—seeing only its paw you could not be persuaded that it was a coyote or jack-rabbit. A store is known by its ads. A man who has never been in this city would be able to identify, unerringly, the enterprising and important stores simply from looking over the ads in this newspaper.

The under-paid school teacher and the over-paid house maid, presents an economic problem, that the government seems to have overlooked.

The city is going into the winter with streets that are not in the best condition and somebody is responsible for neglect. Economy that saves at the spigot is poor economy for any city.

Asahill W. Riley, an employee of the treasury department at Washington with a salary of $100 per month, has learned the art of living on twelve cents per day. His dietary, while very simple, is wholesome, and if generally adopted more people would be loaning money and living on easy street.

The time is ripe for some good stock life insurance company to enter the field and do business along conservative lines. Mutual insurance is under the ban and fraternal societies are on the eve of collapse. The people want protection and are willing to pay for it on a business basis.

The Modern Woodmen are congratulating themselves on a surplus of a million or more and their ability to skip on assessment. The society should learn wisdom from the experience of the Royal Arcanum, and kindred fraternal organizations. They are all traveling the same road and will come to the same pit-fall in time.

If the new rules for assessment of railroad property should be applied to the factories of the state, there would be commotion all along the line. While the law provides for the uniform assessment of property, it has never been applied, and because of this fact railroads and manufacturers have been able to go hand in hand and the state has prospered as the result.

AN EASY WAY OUT.
The easiest way out of the present gubernatorial difficulty would be to divide the state into eleven provinces, to correspond with the congressional districts; erect a pinnacle in each province, and distribute the pinnacles among the men now clamoring for recognition.

There might be some misfits but in that event an exchange could easily be effected. In fact a system of rotation might be adopted which would lend spice and variety to the scheme.

It is hardly reasonable to suppose that McGillivray, with his long black coat, and variegated vocabulary, could satisfy the same vocabulary for an indefinite period, but when sandwiched in with the modest Stout with his non-committal policy, and refreshed at intervals by Leuroot, the voice purist, there would be sufficient variety to relieve the monotony and make life worth living.

Connor, Hatten, Davidson, Haugen and half a dozen more, whose modesty keeps them in the background, would all be taken care of and the entire coterie would be free from responsibility, for the Governor-General can direct the whole force from the capitol steps at Washington when he finds it necessary to be absent from the state.

This is only a suggestion, but it seems an easy way out of a perplexing dilemma.

Just what could be done for Uncle Ike Stephenson under this arrangement might need to be considered, but the old gentleman has held the bag so long that he seems to enjoy it and it would be inhuman to deprive him of the occupation. The scheme is worth considering.

NOT HALF APPRECIATED.
The privilege of living on American soil and enjoying the blessings of American citizenship is not half appreciated by the average citizen.

In fact this lack of appreciation is widespread, and prosperity is so largely the rule, that any sort of calamity which effects the income is a surprise.

The wage earner, from the man who simply invests muscle, to the man who stands at the front, because of larger capacity, is busy in every department, and the labor world devotes every energy to securing short hours and increased wages.

This spirit of independence is due to the fact that times are good in America, and work is seeking the man in every department of toil.

There are thousands of farmers today who are badly handicapped because unable to hire men for work that is pressing, and many manufacturing industries are crowded far beyond capacity.

The steel mills of the country are working on contracts which can not be completed in a twelve month and business men throughout the land are prosperous in rare degree.

While the men of the country are in active demand, the women, who work for wages are not neglected, and more of them find employment in stores and offices today than ever before.

The great army of domestics which contribute so largely to the comforts of the home, is spared beyond recognition, and it is safe to say that a million new recruits could find employment without effort, at better wages than the average school teacher.

While these conditions prevail in America, they do not extend to the nations of the old world. In Great Britain it is estimated that an army of idle workmen one million strong, is suffering from one million necessities of life, and the City of London, where this army is largely represented, is now providing soup houses for the long winter which is just at hand.

Similar conditions exist in Russia and many other foreign countries, and the great problem is not a short work day and increased wages, but simply a chance to work at any wage.

The man who enjoys the privilege of living on American soil, be he native born or an adopted brother, is a privileged character. He is a citizen of the best country in existence today and he is living in a period in history which has no parallel in this far land.

He owes to the land which honors him with protection and a home, the highest allegiance and the most sturdy loyalty. The obligation does not stop here for he owes to himself a disposition to improve the golden opportunities scattered about him so profusely.

The man who can not make a living today in America, and lay by something for a rainy day, is not worthy the title of American citizen.

The weakness of the nation today is not poverty, but too great prosperity. This has engendered a jealousy and brought to the surface a hoard of reformers who attempt to teach the doctrine of class distinction and encourage class hatred.

The congress, soon to convene, will be asked to deal with some questions along the line of reform, which that body can ill-afford to meddle with.

The much discussed tariff is one of these questions, while the men who are clamoring for revision are well aware of the fact that tinkering with the tariff always means the unsettling of values, and demoralization of business.

Government control of railroads is another question which calls for most conservative treatment and careful handling. The times in this country could not possibly be better and congress will do well to recognize this fact and give erratic reformers a wide berth.

PRESS COMMENT.

Opinions Differ Here.
Milwaukee News: While giving thanks, it might be well to remember that the football season ends on the appointed day.

Breakage Less Poetical Likely.
Exchange: An eastern poet says: “The morning light is breaking.” It may be, however, that it is the cook smashing a few cut-glass finger bowls in the kitchen.

Optimistic About Uncle Ike.
Stoughton Hub: He has had another hard jolt, but it is a safe guess that Uncle Ike Stephenson will continue to furnish the grease for the administration band wagon.

He's Glad Of It.
Oshkosh Northwestern: Bernard Shaw insists he is really proud of having written that nasty play, which shows that Mr. Shaw is another one of those standpatters.

Not Blown-in-the-Bottle.
Milwaukee Sentinel: Davidson, Hatten, and Connor will soon learn their sorrow that they have been “blown out” and can no longer be considered as true reformers.

All Abhor Heyl.
Madison Journal: If there is anyone in Wisconsin who hopes that Heyl will get the Schandelin estate, that fact creeps out neither in conversation nor in the public prints.

Sheboygan Tests Earth's Interior.
Sheboygan Journal: Another big mineral spring has been struck in Sheboygan. Judging by the taste of the water, conditions at the center of the earth haven't changed any in the last forty years.

Comforts Of A Small City.
Wausau Record: There is some comfort in living in a small city. The possibility of waking up some morning and finding that your political boss has robbed the city of several millions is so slight.

Such Foolishness Anyway.
Racine Journal: The Chauqua salute must go. Such is the editor issued by the W. C. T. U. because of the fact that many claim microbes are distributed in this manner. The microbes theory is gaining adherents every day.

Fewer But Very Choice.
Superior Telegram: A La Crosse

newspaper says that although that city is fifth in the state in number of inhabitants it is the second in importance of Wisconsin cities. It seems that the people are fewer but more important than in other cities.

Young Braves and Mr. Vilas.
Norwalk Star: The Milwaukee News says that Mr. Vilas may take charge of the Democratic party in Wisconsin ere long. There will not be much left of the party after he coddles it a while. The younger braves have absolutely no use for Mr. Vilas, who belongs to the Cleveland stripe.

Plastering It On Thick.
La Crosse Leader-Press: The Stoughton Courier, which is booming Governor La Follette for the presidential nomination in 1908, believes him the equal of Roosevelt in every respect and that in addition he has “many characteristics which that distinguished statesman, able and eminent though he is, lacks.”

Plastering It On Thick.
Chicago Record-Herald: Cardinal Gibbons declares that the man who waters stock is a swindler. But the man who does the watering will probably excuse himself on the ground that if he didn't get the money from the man who buys the water some gold-brick seller might take it and use it for a base purpose.

The Press Agent in the North.
Marquette Eagle-Star: Walter Wellman says that several southerners of prominence have written to him to say that Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated for president in 1908 by the Democratic party. Truly, some of Wellman's letters read like the stories a tramp reporter writes after having been treated to a half day's drinking bee by an advance agent for a minstrel show.

War-Horses to the Rear.
Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The election of H. H. Manson of Wausau, as chairman of the Democratic state central committee, is an indication that the Democrats purpose to start the next state campaign with a new slate. Mr. Manson was a dark horse in the contest and apparently had an easy winning. He is a young man, personally popular and is not handicapped by affiliations with either of the party factions.

Two Good Hiding Places.
Houston, Mo. Herald: J. J. Drye, in looking through the Bible the other day, found a copy of the New York Herald containing the account of the assassination of President Lincoln. He then remembered that he put it there forty years ago. This leads the Belle Plains News to remark that there are but two places to put things away for safe keeping—in the family Bible or on the shelves of a store that does not advertise.

One Profession Not Overcrowded.
Washington Post: If the United States should be at war today there would not be half enough officers and men to handle the ships of the navy. Within a year ten fine, large ships will go into commission, carrying crews aggregating 7,000 men. They can only be manned by men up vessels now in service, some of them very efficient craft which should be kept in commission. The discrepancy between material and personnel of the navy is daily growing greater.

Something New in Science.
Neenah Times: The Times, in its aim to give its readers news of all the new inventions and discoveries, cannot permit the discovery of Deacon Sloan of Zion City, and the owner of many hens, that eggs can be flavored before they are laid, to go unmentioned. His secret lies in the food that is given to the chickens. Flavored eggs are common in Zion City. When Deacon Sloan wants an orange flavor he feeds his hens on oranges, and people there would not be surprised to have their eggs peppered and salted before long. This will work a revolution in the hotel and restaurant menus, and when you order eggs, the waiter will ask: “What flavor—orange, lemon, vanilla, garlic or straight?”

DEER SLAUGHTER IS TO BEGIN SATURDAY
Open Season Has Attracted Many Hunters to the Northern Woods.

Saturday morning at midnight the hunting of deer begins in Wisconsin and the open season will be on for the remainder of the present month. It will be lawful to kill deer Saturday, but they cannot be legally shipped until Sunday morning. The lawful killing of deer will cease with the final day of the month, but three days are allowed by law for the hunters to get their game home. All shipments must be accompanied by the owner and must be properly tagged to avoid confiscation as required by the laws governing the service of deputy game wardens. Warden Swenholz has sent a large number of deputies into the deer country and they are now checking up hunting camps and otherwise getting tab on the situation so as to better and more effectively enforce the laws. A number of arrests and convictions have been reported for having venison in possession in the closed season, for illegal hunting and fishing, and quantities of game improperly and illegally shipped have been confiscated. Non-residents hunting in Wisconsin this year will be greater than last year. Already 217 non-resident deer licenses have been issued, while at this date last year there had been 190 issued. The total for last year was 379. The non-resident deer license costs $25. There have been issued to date 219 small game licenses to non-residents of Wisconsin, costing $10 each. Last year the total was 322, which included 11 for the spring season. The short spring season was abolished by the last legislature, but it is expected that the total for non-resident small game licenses will be increased this year nevertheless.

When Marriage Begins to Pail.
The greater proportion of divorces take place between the fifth and tenth year of married life.

JANESVILLE BABE AND NO RAG DOLL

Appeared at the Climax of Plot, in Delightful Pastoral Drama, “Sky Farm” Last Evening.

“It was a Janesville babe and no rag-doll who brought about the reconciliation between the harsh and unforgiving ‘czar’ of the New England village and the son and son's wife whom he had persecuted, in that altogether delightful little pastoral drama, ‘Sky Farm,’ presented at the Myers theatre last evening. There was a distinct murmur of approval from the audience when the little mite sat up and took notice and without and previous rehearsal proceeded to play his part with a degree of perfection which again demonstrated the truth of the accepted axiom that all Bower Clivies are born showmen. The curtain went down amid a storm of applause.

“Sky Farm,” from the pen of Edward E. Kildier, who wrote ‘A Poor Relation’ and ‘Peaceful Valley,’ made famous by the late Sol Smith Russell, was not new to Janesville. It was presented here in the fall of 1902. But last night's cast, with the exception of Helen Douglass, who played the tomboy part, was an entirely new one. The management did well in retaining Miss Douglass, for roll and energetic characterization is one of the finest things in the piece. Interest simply cannot lag while she is on the scene and that is a large portion of the time. “Stephen Tully from the marble quarries,” an awkward son of the soil portrayed by Bruce Brayton, was another rich contribution. His gawky antics, even while singing with the very excellent quartette, kept one steady smile on the faces of the spectators. Neither Harry Fowler as “Sleepy Jackson,” nor Minnie Sharpe as “Mildred Wilkins,” the postmistress, was much of their parts as did their predecessors, but they were acceptable. John Moore made a strong, clear-cut character of “Benjamin Breeze,” and the same may be said of William Sheldon as “Neighbor Nixon.” Edith Van Laak as “Margaret Towers,” has a part which in a minor key until the end but she successfully resists the temptation to overdo the sorrowful and gives an admirable portrayal. Grace Campbell makes a delightful “Jonquil.”

Something should be said of the scenic accessories. The audience applauded vigorously when the curtain rose on two of the scenes. One was the view of summer in the valley below “Sky Farm,” showing the realistic field of grain in the foreground, and the other was the remarkable autumn scene in the maple woods with the falling leaves and the gorgeous light filtering through the blotches of scarlet foliage. The piece sparkles with bright, clean comedy and in the odd situations and character presentations real life seems to be only exaggerated, not caricatured. The incidents that transpire in the village postoffice are good for one or two laughs long after one has left the theatre.

ATTACK BY GOLL'S ATTORNEYS.

Indictment Said to Be Faulty in All but One Count.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—Arguments on demurrer to the counts in the indictment against Henry G. Goll in the First National bank case were heard by Judge Quarles in the federal court. The defense attacked twelve out of the thirteen counts, the only one not subject to assault being that charging Goll with making false entries on the bank's books. It was claimed by the defense that the language of the counts is not explicit enough and did not enable the defendant to arrange his defense. Assistant District Attorney Butterfield held that the language was sufficient, a crime had been committed by Frank G. Bibelow and Goll was charged with aiding and abetting him in this crime. It is the impression that on the first two counts the demurrer will be sustained.

CATCH “ROBBERS” AFTER CHASE

Wisconsin Sheriff Takes Chicagoans “Who Held Up Roadhouse.”

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 8.—Two men named Alexander Moore and Edward Cross, from Chicago, who came here to work on the new branch of the Northwestern railroad, attempted to hold up the Burke roadhouse, south of this city. Burke notified the sheriff, who started in pursuit with two deputies. The two men, who were planning revenge on Burke, started through a corn field firing as they ran at the posse. Deputy Barber returned the fire and succeeded in getting his man. Cross was found to be badly injured by the beating received from Burke.

is what you might just as well have done with half your money as far as all the good it has done you, if you have had your dental work done elsewhere than by Dr. Richards.

You have paid $10 for your gold crowns.

He is actually putting on scores of these crowns, warranted EQUAL TO ANY in EVERY respect, for one-half of that price.

Just $5 each.
How can he do it?

By the law of quantity.
He probably does more crown and bridge work than all the dentists in this city combined.

Where any one of them puts out one crown, he puts out a dozen.

He makes his own profit and profit smaller in each case of work than to a large volume of business to repay him.

Not having his hands tied by having signed any agreement to keep up high prices, he is in a position to do your work at a reasonable figure.

Both policy which is satisfactory to both the dentist and the patient.

CURRENT ITEMS

Program Successful: The program arranged for the regular monthly banquet of the Greater America club of the Congregational church last evening was very successful and instructive. The election of officers, which was to have taken place last evening, was deferred until another meeting.

Very Low With Typhoid: Theodore Smith, son of J. M. Smith, is in a very critical condition at his home on Washington street. He contracted typhoid fever in Chicago about three weeks ago and arrived in Janesville in a semi-unconscious state, failing to reach his home until two hours after he left the train at the depot. At times during his illness he has rallied, but little hope in entertained for him now.

Drunk in Court: Four men appeared in municipal court this morning to plead guilty to the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Edward Conroy was sentenced to pay $3 and costs or spend thirty days in jail, but sentence was suspended during good behavior. Chris Wyss was given an opportunity to leave town. William Grimes paid a fine of $2 and costs. Philip Maher paid a fine of $1 and costs.

Marriage Licenses: Marriage licenses have been issued to Charles Seifert of Jefferson and Minnie Kischner of Beloit; Christopher Delp and Anna Pancer, both of Clinton.

Going to Manila: Captain J. Marshall Robinson of the United States Navy, who has been visiting at the home of his cousin, Victor P. Richardson, for several days past, departed this morning. He is soon to go to Manila to take command of one of the United States cruisers.

Special Meeting: The Rock County Caledonian society will hold a special meeting at their rooms this evening at 7:30.

Making Investigation: Edwin R. Townsend of Chicago, a hydraulic and electrical engineer, is here in the interest of several of the stock insurance companies making an investigation of the facilities for fire protection. He thinks that the fire department should have more men and more hose and avers that the fire steamer should be in better shape.

SUGAR BEETS ARE A FAVORED CROP NOW

Report from Experimental Station at Madison Shows the Results Gained.

(By Geo. A. Olson, Asst. Chemist, Wisconsin Experiment Station.)

At the close of this year the three factories operating in this state will have had the most successful sugar campaign in their history. Results obtained in cooperation with the Division of Chemistry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, demonstrate the fact that Wisconsin is one of the best states in the union for the production of sugar from sugar beets.

This is now an established fact and will be emphasized more at the close of this campaign when the farmer will receive his compensation for the beets grown by him.

The climatic conditions this year have on the whole been very satisfactory for the production of sugar in the beet root. On account of this the yield of sugar in the beet root will be high and consequently the profits for the farmer will be much larger than this year than heretofore.

In fact I expect to see so successful a campaign, that a larger number of farmers will grow the beet root next year than this, and a larger acreage will be grown by those who have already given their attention to beet growing, so that this new industry will be likely to partly take the place of some of the staple crops, now grown.

Beet growing would be a different story if one had to grow beets containing only six to seven per cent of sugar. Nevertheless, the highest amount of sugar that the beet contained in the time of Napoleon was only seven per cent. But by careful selection and breeding we have succeeded in obtaining sugar beets that have tested as high as twenty per cent of sugar and even more.

This year at Menomonee Falls one man brought beets to the factory that tested 19.5 per cent of sugar. At the Experiment station farm, where experiments have been conducted by Prof. F. W. Woll and R. A. Moore, in reference to different kinds of select seed under varying conditions, such as with and without fertilizers, results show a range of from 13.22 to 15.23 per cent sugar, with an average test of 16.84 per cent sugar.

The topped beets in this experiment weighed, on the average, 1.31 pounds.

Some of the varieties of seeds experimented with are the Schaefer, Breasted and Hoerning. The last one was furnished by the Rock county and the Dane County Sugar companies and was the same kind as sown by the farmers for the respective companies.

Beets grown from Hoerning seed gave an average test of 16.59 per cent sugar in the beet.

High-testing seed of high germinating power is not only beneficial to the company, but the farmer as well. When a farmer grows beet roots from high-grade seed, his returns are larger because he is paid according to the amount of sugar contained in the beet.

I. e., the sugar company agrees to pay for all beet testing 14 per cent of sugar, or less, $4.50 per ton, and an additional 25 cents per ton for each per cent increase over 14 per cent sugar. On the other hand, it is preferable to the company to manufacture sugar from high-testing beets rather than from low-testing ones, because they obtain a larger amount of sugar from the same amount of beet, and the purity of the juice in such beets is also generally higher than in the case of beets of a low sugar content.

With a select quality of seed and proper care by the farmer in growing beets, both farmer and manufacturer will make money; the latter encourages the farmer because he is dependent upon his success, and the former is encouraged because his profits are larger.

Wisconsin farmers, on the whole, can make as much money in growing sugar beets as with any other commodity that they produce. Beet growing requires painstaking care and work as with tobacco; with these qualities there is success, without them you fail.

To guarantee the accuracy of the tests the chemists testing the beet root in the different factories of this state, are appointed by the director of the experiment station. In addition, the instruments used in testing the beets are under station supervision.

CULLOM'S STORY IS SURPRISE

Havana Refuses to Believe Yellow Fever Is Near.

Havana, Nov. 8.—General surprise is expressed at United States Senator Cullom's recent statement that a yellow fever epidemic is imminent in Havana. The authorities continue indifferent to the sewer project. President Palma's message to congress at its opening Monday did not mention it. Nevertheless it is the general hope and expectation that congress, now that the army payment is amply taken care of, will authorize the carrying out of Havana's sewerage contract and appropriate funds to assist in the work.

MURDER ARREST STIRS MONTANA

Three Prominent Men Are Accused by Detective From Private Agency.

AGED VICTIM SLAIN FOR CASH

Robbers Got More Than $2,000 in Money and Several Diamonds—Friends of the Prisoners Declare They Are Innocent.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 8.—The arrest of H. Ray Long, Edward W. Taylor, and A. J. Heinicke, charged with the murder of Samuel Stodinski at Lewistown, this state, last August, has created more excitement than the news of the murder.

The accused are prominent in the community in which they live, and two of them have been active both in social and business circles. Long and Taylor are both married. The former is foreman of the Montana Lumber company at Lewistown, one of the largest lumber concerns in the state.

Taylor is head salesman for a hardware concern, and has taken an active interest in social affairs. Heinicke formerly was a printer, but recently has been a traveling salesman.

Murder Was Cold Blooded.

No murder in recent years in Montana has so stirred the people as that of Stodinski. It was cold blooded and heartless, and the sole object was robbery. Stodinski was an old man, a hide and pelt buyer and money lender. He had no faith in banks and kept his property in the house he occupied all alone.

Investigation after the murder showed that some one who knew the old man, and whom he knew, had called on him that night. They evidently had deceived the old man by telling him they wanted to borrow money. He had gone to a trunk in which he kept his money and pledges, and as he stooped over it with the top open he had been struck on the head, the blood falling into the trunk.

Leave Mystic Sign.

In the room was found a large knife, a curio, which the old man had picked up on his travels. It was covered with blood and was supposed to be the weapon with which the murder was committed. Pinned on the breast of the old man was a placard, written in the blood of the victim, reading: "K. C. No. 17." A similar placard was fastened to the stove.

The letters were well formed, showing it was the work of a good penman. The robbers got not less than $2,000 in cash and a number of diamonds.

The local officers arrested four men, but they were discharged, proving they could not have committed the crime. Early in September a private detective from Spokane arrived at Lewistown. Who employed him is not known, but he is supposed to have been sent by the brother of the murdered man, a wealthy jeweler at San Francisco. He was joined by his chief and the arrest followed.

Friends of the accused scout the idea of their guilt, but the detectives say they have no fear of the outcome of the case.

CORPSE IS HANGED BY JAILER

Condemed Man Practically Scared to Death Before His Execution.

South McAlester, I. T., Nov. 8.—Terrified by his approaching execution, Grant Williams was seized with paralysis two weeks before the date for his hanging and was dead to the world when he was led to the gallows here. He could not walk, could not speak and his head rolled over on his shoulder hump as a rag. He knew nothing of his tragic death. Williams killed two men in a dispute over 35 cents. For two months Williams had undergone tortures of paralysis which did not permit him to move and to eat but little. He lost the power of his limbs and lately of speech, and it is not probable that he realized in the slightest that he was being executed.

Judith of the Plains

—By—
MARIE MANNING,
Author of "Lord Allingham, Bankrupt"

Copyright, 1903, by Harper & Brothers

"I lost mine," Mrs. Yellett folded her arms and looked at her questioner with something of a challenging mien.

"What a pity! I've been so interested in the quotations I've heard you make from it."

"What's the matter with 'em?" she demanded, pride and apprehension equally commingled.

Judith Rodney rushed to the rescue.

"Nothing," she said, with her disarming smile, "except that there is not quite enough to go around."

The matriarch had the air of gathering herself together for something really worth while. Then she tossed off:

"Tah! that's the quality of the grub that confers the favor, but sometimes the scarcity thereof."

Perhaps it has been the good fortune of some of us to say a word of praise to an author, while unconscious of his relationship to the book praised.

Mark the genial glow radiating from every feature of our auditor! How we feel ourselves unloved with his approval, our good taste and critical faculty how commended! It is a luxury that goes a long way toward mitigating the discomforts caused by the reverse of this unctuous balm.

"The Book of Hiram," said Mrs. Yellett, looking for time, "is a book—it does surprise me that it escapes your notice back east. You ever heard tell of the Book of Mormon?"

Mark asseverated.

"Well, the Book of Hiram is like the Book of Mormon, only a heap more undeveloped. The youngest child can read it without asking a single embarrassing question of its elder, and the

"It's mighty inconvenient that I should have mislaid that book," the oldest sinner can read it without having any fessily meditations intruding on his piety."

The Yellett family had by this time dispersed itself for the afternoon, and the matriarch and the two girls started in to clear away the meal and wash the dishes.

"That's the kind of book for me," continued Mrs. Yellett, vigorously swishing about in the soapy water.

"Story books don't count none with me these days. It's my opinion that things are snarled up a whole lot too much in real life without pestering over the anguish of print folks."

With the feeling that there was an excellent though unspoken understanding between them, the two girls walked together to the top of the path that wandered away from camp toward a bluff overlooking wave after wave of foothills, lying blue and still like a petted sea.

"I'm still dying to know who wrote that letter," begged Mary.

"It was written by a lady who is very anxious to return to Washington, and she took that means of getting one more vote. Her husband is going to run for the senate next term. We hear a good deal of that side of politics, you know."

"It was certainly convincing," remarked the victim of the letter. "My hands detected many virtues in the handwriting."

"But now that you are really here, isn't it splendid? Mountains are such good neighbors. They give you their great company and yet leave you your own little reservations."

"But I fear I can never feel at home out of doors," Mary announced with such a rueful expression that they both smiled.

"Perhaps, then, it depends on the frame of mind. I've had longer than you to cultivate it."

Mary looked toward the mountains, serene in their strength. "Awesome as they are," she laughed, "they don't frighten me nearly as much as Ben and Ned. They are really very nice, my pupils, and I feel so ridiculous sitting up back of that tub, teaching them letters and the spelling of foolish words, when they know things I've never dreamed of. The other day, out of a few scratches in the dust that I should never have given a second glance, one of them made out that some one's horses had broken the corral and one was trailing a rope, whereupon my pupil got on a horse, went in search of the strays and returned them to men going to a roundup. After that, the spelling of cat didn't seem quite so much of an achievement as it had before."

"But they need the spelling of cat so much more than you need to understand trail marks. Why don't you try a little strategy with them—perhaps a bribe even? It seems to me I remember something in history about the part played in colonization by the bright colored bead."

"You are so splendid!" said Mary impulsively, remembering Judith's own sorrows and smiling fortitude with which she kept them hidden. "You make me feel like a horrid little girl that has been whining."

Judith looked toward the mountains a long time without speaking.

"When you know them well they whisper great things that little folk can't take away."

She turned back toward camp, walking lightly, with head thrown back. Mary watched her. Yes, the mountains might have admitted her to their company.

CHAPTER XIV.

JUDITH awakened with all the starchy infinitude of sky for a canopy. In the distance loomed the foothills, watchful-sentinel of her slumbers, and sloping gently away from them rolled the plain, like some smooth, dark sea flowing deep and silently, Judith, a solitary figure adrift in that still ocean of space, sat up and watched the stars fade and saw the young day peer timorously at the world that lay before it. Her mind, refreshed by long hours of dreamless sleep, turned to the problem of impending things serenely contemplative. The way of the Indian was ever her way when circumstance raised no barriers; the four walls of a house were a prison to her after the days lengthened and the summer nights grew warm. To the infinite disapproval of that custodian of propriety, Mrs. Dax, she would make her bed beneath the stars night after night and bathe in the cold, clear waters of the stream that purled from the white capped crest of the mountains.

Judith, going to her favorite pool to bathe, saw that it had shrunk till it seemed but a fairy well hid among the willows. A quarter of a mile above was another pool, hidden like a jewel in its case of green, bordered with scarlet roseberries and white clematis, and toward this she bent her steps, as time was a plenty that morning. It lay half hid beneath a shelving rock, a fount for the tiny white fall that crooned and sang as it fell. And here she bathed as the east faded, where the mountains blackened against it.

She had kept postoffice the day before, and it would not be till day after tomorrow that the squires of the lariat would come again to offer their hearts, their worldly goods, their complete reformation, if she would only change her mind. It was all such an old story that she had grown to regard them with a tenderness almost maternal.

But today was all her own, and the spirit of adventure swelled high in her bosom as she thought of what she had planned. It was warm and close and still in the Dax house as Judith made her way softly to her own room and began her preparations for the long journey she was to take afoot. To walk in the abominations devised by the white man for the purpose of cramping his feet would have been a serious handicap to Judith. The twenty miles that she would walk before nightfall was no very great undertaking to her, but it was part of her primitive directness to accomplish it with as little expenditure of fatigue and comfort as possible.

She might have inspired Kitty Colebrooke to a sonnet as she stepped out into the glad morning light in short skirt and jacket, green clad as the pines that girdled the mountains, with a knapsack with rations of bread and meat and the wherewithal to build a fire should she wander belated. She softly closed the door, not to awaken Louder and his slumbering lady, and broke into the running gait that the Indians use on their all day journeys, the elk hide moccasins falling soft as snowflakes on the trail. Dolly, she sniffed chiefly for her companionship, for Judith had not the white man's utter helplessness without a horse in this country of high altitudes. When she walked she breathed, carried her self, covered ground like her mother's people, and loved the inspiration of it.

The eerie shadows of the desert drew back and hid themselves in the mountains. The day began with splendid promise—the day of the wolf hunt, of which no word had been spoken to her by Peter. She, too, was going hunting, but silently and unbidden she would steal through the forest and see this mysterious Peter, who loved fast and loose with women, who played her apparently all the better for the same she played. What manner of woman could do these things? What manner of woman could be indifferent to Peter? Judith was curiously curious to see.

And, apart from this naked and unashamed curiosity, there was the possibility that at sight of Miss Colebrooke there might come a relaxation of Peter's tyrannous hold upon her thoughts, her life, her very heart's blood. Would her loyalty bear the test of seeing Peter made a fool of by a woman she could dismiss with a shrug—softly speaking shrew perhaps, who played a waiting game with her finger on the pulse of Peter's prospects? For there was talk of a partnership with the Wetmores. Or a fool, perhaps, for all her sonneting, for there are men who relish a weak headpiece as the chiefest ornament of women, especially when its indeterminate vagaries boast an escape valve remotely connected with the fine arts; or a devil woman, perhaps—an upright wanton who could think no wrong from very poverty of temperament, yet kept him dangling. The possibility of Kitty's honesty Judith in her jealousy would not admit. Had she gone to the devil for him, stood and faced the drift of opinion for his sake—that Judith could have understood. But what was the spinning of verses to a woman's portion of loving and being loved? Withal Judith was forced to admit that there was something simple and true about a man who would let a woman make a fool of him, whoever the woman was.

Perhaps with this hunting would end the long reign of Peter as a divinity. Judith was tired, not in her vigorous young body, because that was strong and healthful as the bill wind, but tired in heart and mind and life. Her destiny had not been beautiful or happy before he invaded it, but it had been calm, and now severity seemed the worst gift of the gods. It was not that she loved him less, but that she had so long reflected upon him that her imagination was numb. Her thoughts, arid, unfruitful as the desert, turned from him to the problems that beset her, and from them back to him again. In dull, subconscious yearning, she could no longer project an anguished consciousness to those scenes wherein he walked and talked with Kitty. Her Indian fatalism had intervened. "Life was life," to be loved or left, and yet she felt herself a poor creature, one who had lived long on illusion, one who had bent her neck to the yoke of arid unrealities. The pale haired woman who kept him with her miserliness of self, who intruded no sadder tragedy of loving, was well worth a trip across the foothills to see, and yet, Judith reflected, it was the portion of her mother's daughter to make of loving the whole business of life, even if she rebelled and fought against it as an accursed destiny.

Her light feet scarcely touched the ground as she sped swiftly through all the network of the hills, and more than once her woman's heart asked the question, "And, prithee, Judith, if from henceforth you are only to hold fellowship with the stars and have no part in the ways of men, why do you walk a day's journey to catch a glimpse of a pale haired woman?"

She knew the probable course of the wolf hunt. She had been on scores of them, galloped with Peter after the feeble gray thing that swept along the ground like the nucleus of a whirling dust devil. At least she was sure of the place of the mousing—a limpid stream that ran close to many young pine trees. Here was a pause in the rugged ascent, a level space of open green, thick with buffalo grass. Many times had she been here with Peter, sometimes with many other people on the chase, sometimes—and these occasions were enshrined in her memory, each with its own particular halo—with Peter alone, and they had fished for trout and cooked their supper on the grassy levels. It was in Judith's plan, to arrive before the hunting party, to hide among the thickets of scrub pine that grew along the steep cliffs and overlooked the grassy level, to take her fill of looking at the pale haired girl and the hunters at their merry-making, and, when he had seen, to steal back across the trail to the Daxes.

They would not penetrate the thickets where she meant to hide, and should they she was prepared for that contingency too. She had brought with her a bright colored shawl that she would throw over her head, and with the start of them she could outrun them all, even Peter. Had she not outdanced him easily many times in fun? Through the tangle of tree trunks that grew not far from the thicket they would think she was but a poor Shoshone squaw lying in wait for the broken meat of the revelers.

CHICAGO GIRL'S EXPLOIT

Miss E. L. Baker First Woman to Climb Mount Breithorn.

THE ASCENT MADE BY MOONLIGHT

She Scaled 13,777 Foot Peak in Alps and Accomplished Round Trip in Twenty-four Hours—Strange Delusions and Yearning For Crackers and Milk Assailed Young Woman on Her Journey Into the Clouds.

Over dizzy crevasses where woman never climbed before, up slippery inclines where a single misstep meant death, dangled by a rope from precipitous heights and hauled back almost starved and beset by strange delusions, these are a few of the perils passed through by Miss Edith Lee Baker of Chicago, who has conquered the Breithorn, a 13,777 foot peak in the Alps, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Miss Baker, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Baker, has accomplished what many women have attempted to do and failed. She ascended the Breithorn, a snow covered mountain fifteen feet higher than the world famed Jungfrau, and made the return, all in twenty-four hours of heart breaking toil, fatigue and privation.

Many women have tried the ascent before, but no woman, with the single exception of Miss Baker, can boast that she ended the adventure by a triumphant return inside of twenty-four hours. In a letter to friends in Chicago Miss Baker has described her feat.

Miss Baker is just five feet tall. Her father is a retired real estate man and former president of the Chicago Cold Storage company. He and his wife gave up their home in Chicago to accompany their daughter to Europe.

Miss Baker spends her vacation period in mountain climbing. The Bakers make their home in Neully, a suburb of Paris. Leaving Zermatt, where she was stopping with her father and mother, on the morning of Sept. 10, Miss Baker reached the Theodule Cabane in the afternoon of the same day, a tremendous climb for a woman.

With only a short rest she started at 8 p. m. of the same day to climb to the summit by moonlight. She reached the top at 11:30 and then ended the journey by making the descent to Cabane. Miss Baker expects to climb the Matterhorn, 14,705 feet, another season. Emil Perren was her guide on the Breithorn climb.

"It was the prettiest little ascent imaginable," said Miss Baker in a letter. "You should see me hold on to a rock with my teeth. There was one place, though, where I regret to say, I dangled. It was an absolutely smooth, slippery slab of rock with a tiny foot hold, a crack, just four inches beyond the very farthest stretch of my toe, and a hand hold one foot too high, so I swung in space—it seemed an age to me—until the guide hauled me up."

"The Breithorn is fifteen feet—think of it—higher than the Jungfrau, which I climbed last summer, but I am sorry to say it is less difficult, although with lots of ice and snow, a test of endurance to mountain climbing. At the Cabane I had bouillon and a dab of omelet in a sea of grease. After this magnificent meal I went into the kitchen to warm by the stove, the only fire in that frozen place. Heaven deliver me from the remembrance of that kitchen!"

"This cabane is a sort of an awful inn—five rooms, 26 frames each, and nothing to eat."

"I felt the altitude and suffered by it, but was determined to accomplish the full ascent. When well up, so far up in the world of ice it seemed return might be impossible, I began to crave warm milk. Of course it was impossible to get it there, but the thought—the torturing thought—kept with me that I must have warm milk. Not having this, I remembered a roll left over from my luncheon. That roll—the best I ever tasted—with a little cold tea, had to last me from 10 o'clock until 5. I never had starved before, and I never want to again."

"You get strange delusions when at these high altitudes and without the food you really need. Every mountain and every inclosed valley I saw on the long descent became to me huge bowls of crackers in which hot milk bubbled, and yet I could not dip into them and have my fill. When I reached Zermatt at last my first words to papa were a cry for crackers and hot milk, and he said afterward there were real tears in my voice. I drank gallons of water when I could get it. They wouldn't let me touch the snow. But the water actually didn't taste wet, really and truly. That hot milk was wet, tasted so good, and made me feel less hungry. Then I went to bed."

"Every peak of the southern Alps and the dim chains of the Oberland, too, were visible in that wonderful unearthly light. And the snow and the deep shadows—it was beyond this world!"

"After it was all over it really made me ashamed of myself. I had made a double ascension never accomplished by any woman before, and I had seen such splendors and glories of the Alpine world as I had never dreamed existed, but the only thing I could think of when I was safe at home was the awful needs of my stomach."

"Now that I am myself again I can hardly write of what I saw on the Breithorn in the wonderful moonlight. There are some memories that overwhelm me and are beyond expression. They are too near now, too sacred and divine, to write freely of. I cannot really say I saw these things with my eyes. Rather my soul felt them."

ADVERTISING A STORE IS WORK FOR A "FULL-GROWN" MAN!

The Spanish have a homely saying that the "foot of the owner is the best manure for his land."

In a similar sense it may be said that the hand of "the boss" is the best energizer for his store-advertising.

That is to say—his hand, plus his ideas, plus his enthusiasm, plus his faith in his store, plus his tact and experience and knowledge and courage, will make his store-publicity yield a plentiful harvest.

It's not work for the second best brain in the house—it's work for "the boss!"

Not much else about store-keeping matters if the store-advertising is weak—so it's

BELIEVERS IN BIBLE

HOLD THANKSGIVING

British and Foreign Bible Society Heeds Messages from Kings, a Queen, and President Roosevelt.

London, Nov. 3.—The British and Foreign Bible society held in Albert hall a thanksgiving, it being the closing of the society's centenary commemoration. Messages were read from King Edward, Emperor William, King Oscar of Sweden, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, and President Roosevelt.

Ambassador Reid spoke briefly on religion in the United States. He pointed out that although religion forms no part of the American constitution and receives no state support, the United States had had a few great leaders, hardly more than one president, who were not avowedly religious men. Mr. Reid read the following:

"Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 29.—My Dear Mr. Ambassador: May I through you send my hearty congratulations to the British and Foreign Bible society at its centenary thanksgiving meeting. I trust the gathering will stimulate world wide interest in the translation and circulation of the bible. I feel certain that all having the good of mankind closely at heart will feel for the society's effort the sincerest sympathy and good will."

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

CAVALRY MOUNTED ON OXEN

Lumbering Cattle Take the Place of Horses in the Native Militia.

Charging with heads lowered is part of the drill of the oxen cavalry, and an exciting part, too, for the onlooker. Thirty mounted natives mounted on their oxen stand at attention some hundred feet apart from 30 more natives similarly mounted. At the given signal, says Glen Fling, in the Technical World, they rush at each other, the oxen with their heads lowered ready to strike, the natives with their spears grasped firmly and eyes fixed on the oncoming "foe." They come to a sudden halt when about three feet apart, wheel right-about-face and make ready for the second charge.

To one watching it seems as though the two corps must of a certainty go crashing into each other, and this is what sometimes does happen in the early drills. These accidents never result in serious mishaps, however, and amid great yelling of natives, sounding of bugles, snorting and stamping of oxen the cavalry is always brought back into position and order is once more wrought out of chaos.

The oxen are neither slow nor easily frightened and they have proved most intelligent, learning their part of animal life with remarkable rapidity and taking to it as naturally as a regular veteran charger. They are powerful beasts and possess great fortitude and endurance. Lacking fear in battle and advancing with great speed upon an opposing army, their horns pointing forward, they would create great havoc among horse cavalry.

WORK OF THE IMAGINATION

Story of How It Spoiled a Dainty Feast for a Company of Diners.

"Speaking about the imagination controlling one's appetite," remarked the waiter in the Forty-second street chop house, relates the New York Globe, "reminds me of a little incident that occurred down here the other evening. A party of six from one of the theaters came in and ordered a soft crab supper. When the queer looking objects came out daintily mounted on brown toast, the party began to cut up the rich claws and eat them with a relish. I guess they would have consumed them all, and called for more, had there not been a joker along. This joker speared one of the crabs with his fork, and holding it aloft said, with a twinkle in his eye:

"Gee, I have to shut my eyes when I eat soft crabs."

"Why so?" asked one of his companions.

"Because they look so much like fried spiders."

"Then the others noticed the striking similarity between a soft crab and a spider and lost their appetites."

END UNIQUE ELECTION AMID SCENES OF RIOT

Plant of Newspaper That Supports Mayor Coyle at Madison, Ill., Is Wrecked.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3.—F. A. Jones, a printer, reached here with the information that the office of the Tri-City Advocate of Madison, Ill., which supported Mayor Coyle against the Garesche faction, had been wrecked during Tuesday evening.

This, with the disappearance of Coyle and his family from Madison, following the election of Garesche, whose ticket was the only one on the ballot, are incidents of one of the most unique elections in the history of Illinois.

The Garesche faction, armed, had compelled the trustees to declare an election in spite of the order of Mayor Coyle declaring it off. During the day, according to Jones, E. F. Callon, editor of the newspaper, was assaulted, and at night a crowd of about fifty men and boys who were celebrating the Garesche victory broke down the door and wrecked the plant.

While the destination of Mayor Coyle and his family is unknown, his closest friends were informed that he intended to leave town until after the election muddle had been straightened out. The intense feeling shown by the citizens on the previous evening frightened him, it is said.

LOVE'S COMMANDMENTS.

First—Thou shalt have no other love but me.

Second—Trust me all in all or not at all.

Third—Thou shalt not dull me with satiety.

Fourth—Wound me not with cruel words.

Fifth—Thou shalt not bind me with fetters.

Sixth—Guard me as the jewel of thy soul, for, once lost, I can never be regained.

Seventh—Thou shalt not mistake thy fancies for me.—Dorothy Dix in the Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Mean Man.

How's this for a mean man? He gives his little boy a penny for going to bed without his supper. After the little boy has gone to bed, he sneaks upstairs and steals it out of his pocket. When the little boy comes down in the morning he whips him for losing it.

Universal Power of Women.

George Eliot says, "Every man who is not a monster, mathematician or mad philosopher, is the slave of some woman or other."

Life-Saving Pigs.

A coasting steamer was wrecked near Sydney. The captain tied life-lines to some pigs which formed part of the cargo. These, on being thrown overboard, quickly swam ashore, taking the lines with them. Communication being thus established, every person on board was rescued.

Popular Error Regarding Wine.
Most people think white grapes make white wine and dark grapes make red wine; it is a popular error. Red wine is made by fermenting grape juice and grape skins together, and white wine is made by fermenting grape juice alone.

Wanted Them With Hulls On.
Dorothy was accustomed to having her eggs broken into the cup before they came to the table. One morning she said: "Mamma, why can't I have my eggs cooked with the hulls on, same as you do?"
